The Girl Parrieides. A dispatch to the New York Herald from Danville gage:

"A correspondent had an interview to day with the Williams girle, who are charged with killing their father last Thursday, near Whitnell. The eldest, in reply to a question put to her as to the perpetrator of the crime, made a statement that on the evening proceeding the murder her father cent her to Whitnell to purchase whiskey with mency she had earned with her own hands by drying fruit, and that she procured the quantity of waiskey desired and invested the remainder of the money is a few yards of colico. When she came home her father became coraged about the purchase of the eslico, and having tied her to a troe beat ber nearly to death; that he then choked her mother till she was black in the face; that her mother, as soon as sho was released, went for mother, as soon as she was released, went for the warrant, and that she and her sister, fearing for their lives, took both of the axes and hid them; but their father demanded them, saying that he intended to kill his entire family and burn them up afterward. She denied emphatically all knowledge of the murder. Their story, however, is interly descretited. At the time of the discovery of William's body the calico referred to by the girl was found by his side, and it is believed girl was found by his side, and it is believed that he tock it way from the girls and that they waited until he was asleep and killed him, as already reported. There were two exes used, instead of one, and so deeply were they imbedded that, in drawing them out, the head and shoulders were liked from the ground. One of the girls, who appears half idiotic, would make no statement, but indered that of her sister. No one in looking at the prisoners would judge them capable of committing such an unpatural them capable of committing such an unnatural crime. They are both destitute of education, crime. They are both destitute or education, and have picked up a living by gathering berries, chestnuts, etc., which they generally exchange for whiskey for their father. A horrible story is circulated here to the effect that Williams, a few days before the murder, had instructed two of his daughters to care received. structed two of his daughters to earn money by leading a vicious life, and said that after killing his wife he would take the third daughter in her stead, and there is a surmise that the murder originated in an attempt on his part to carry out this purpose. Though Williams was a had mar Wholesale and Retail Dealers and Shippers of children with them, and, as they were present when the tragedy occurred, it is believed they will in time give the facts in the case"

The girls were fully aware that I broiderad. they were marrying men already married, and, in fact, were acquatated with the mon's wives. Their plan was to run away to Boston, and there live, but at the time of their marriage they had not enough money to do so. The girls worked together in a lac ory, earning $7 a week anjece. McLaughlin earned $10 a week as a galvanizer, and li-chler worked for his father, a tailor. The girls lived at home, and went about their work as usual, giving their earnings to McLaughlin, who was to save up enough to take the whole party away. Instead of arranging to leave the city, McLaughlin hired two rooms at 21 Chrystie street, and on the 31 instant they moved in. Last Thursday night Detective McNamara got a clue to their wheresbouts, and fould the place on Friday morning. Only the girls were at home, and he took them into custody. At 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon he arrested McLaughlin at his logal wife's house. Tiscular is known to have left the city. HUMAN BONES FOR MANURE. - A dispatch from London says: "A great sensation has been caused at Bristol by the discovery that a eargo of 200 time of Laman bones is bling discharged there to the order of a local firm engaged in manufacturing manure. The bones were shipped from Rodosco at Constantinople, and are supposed to be the remains principally of the brave defenders of Plevon, There are complete limbs among the horrible cargo, and sufficient for one gallon, with full recips for in some cases the hair still adheres to the skull, same and explicit directions for use. Price 250 in some cases the hair still adheres to the skull. It is a common thing in England to buy human bones. They are used for macuring land. It has often been said that England was manued with bones taken from the battle fields of
